

Burlington Junior High School students got a close look at a military helicopter Dec. 22. Chief Warrant Officer 4 Lanny Morrison and Capt. Kevin Johnson, Army Reserve pilots, brought the Huey UH-1 to the school from Waukesha. The visit was arranged by Mike Butler, whose technology education students are studying aviation and aerospace. Butler knows the subject well. A former Army Reserve pilot, he is now an Air Force Reserve captain flying C-130 cargo planes for the 440th Tactical Airlift Wing at Mitchell Field.

(Richard Berg photo)

Is this a future pilot or a flight engineer? Mike Butler, (front) technology education teacher at Burlington Middle School, gives last minute instruction to eighth-grader Andy Friend before he flies the glider he built for a unit competition. The winner of the aviation and aerospace unit will receive a free flight with Butler in a Cessna 172 at the Burlington airport.

(Photo submitted)